MARKET REVIEW

Unaudited Report on Activities from January 1, 2023 to December 31, 2023*

Review

In 2023, China's economy navigated through significant challenges. The anticipated resurgence in China's post-pandemic economy was eclipsed by challenges from a high-interest rate environment impacting global supply and demand, and a slower-than-expected revival of domestic consumer demand. Internationally, the Israel-Hamas conflict and a stock market surge in the US artificial intelligence (AI) sector sparked risk aversion and led to significant capital outflow. Amid this challenging backdrop, certain companies managed to outperform, while the government engaged in calibrated initiatives to stabilize the economy and guide it towards a steady recovery.

Reconnecting to the world marked the start of the year. High-level visits from global leaders, including the French President Emmanuel Macron, early on set a definitive tone for the year, signaling a revival and strengthening of diplomatic and economic ties as China reopened its borders. The China Development Forum in March further exemplified this reconnection, as prominent business leaders like Tim Cook from Apple, Peter Wennink from ASML, and Mark Schneider from Nestle visited China and reaffirming their commitment to business relationships with the country. By the year end, China introduced visa-free entry for citizens of several European countries, including Germany, and France, marking a first in its diplomatic history. All these reflected China's commitment to fostering greater global connectivity and openness.

The US-China relations witnessed key moments of diplomatic re-engagement and renewed dialogue. Key diplomatic visits and highlevel talks by US dignitaries, including Secretary of State Anthony Blinken and Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen, set a collaborative tone. The emphasis on climate and technology collaboration was highlighted by California Governor Gavin Newsom's China visit in October. In November, the diplomatic zenith was reached during President Xi's visit to the APEC Conference in California, marked by a meeting with President Biden and discussions with leading CEOs, including Satya Nadella from Microsoft, Elon Musk from Tesla, and Jane Fraser from Citigroup, reaffirming the commitment to Sino-American economic and technology partnerships.

The international venture of Chinese businesses reflected a notable evolution in global market dynamics. Under the Belt and Road initiative, domestic express delivery companies revolutionized logistics in the Middle East and North Africa with digitalization and automation, while pledging to invest USD 2 billion in the logistics network in the next five years. Platforms like Shein, TikTok Shop and TEMU led the charge in e-commerce and digital marketing innovation, altering the landscape of the global retail industry. This trajectory underscores China's pivotal role in shaping global economic trends, cementing its position as a key driver of innovation and connectivity in the international market.

The high-end manufacturing sector also made significant strides. The Comac C919, a domestically designed narrowbody plane, commenced commercial operations on the busiest Beijing-Shanghai route in May. With growing appetite for electric vehicles (EV) globally, China has overtaken Japan to become the world's largest car exporter, with BYD surpassing Tesla as the top EV seller. In August, Huawei's launch of its new high-end Mate 60 Pro, featuring a home-grown 7-nanometer processor, marked a leap in the domestic chip manufacturing industry. The country is rapidly realizing its vision of self-reliance in cutting-edge technologies.

The approach to economic stimulation was marked by prudence, aiming to balance immediate growth needs with the avoidance of long-term risks from extensive stimulus. At the start of the year, the government adjusted lending policies to support home buyers in regions with declining property sales. Commercial banks lowered deposit rates to stimulate consumer spending, reflecting a strategic approach to revitalize economic activity. In the real estate sector, the government endorsed debt restructuring for beleaguered property developers, including Sunac and Country Garden. In October, the approval of a 1 trillion CNY sovereign bond issuance targeting urban infrastructure represented a deliberate effort to reinforce economic growth.

The Chinese equity market in 2023 grappled with significant challenges, leading to its third consecutive year of negative returns. Factors contributing to this downturn included persistently high global interest rates, capital outflows triggered by the AI boom in the US and the Israel-Hamas war, uncertainties in China's uneven economic recovery, and disappointment towards the Government's conservative approach to stimulus policies. During the year, the MSCI China Index contracted 13.3% in USD terms, making it one of the worst performers among global regions.

Stock Market and Investment Policy

During the reporting period, HSZ China Fund lost 22.5% in USD terms, of which 2.0% is from currency depreciation. The best performers were PDD Holdings, a leading Chinese e-commerce platform expanding overseas, Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company (TSMC), the world largest semiconductor company, and Midea, China's largest home appliance company.

PDD Holdings stood out as the top performer and gained 71.1% in 2023. The e-commerce platform capitalized on the 'value-for-money' trend in China's consumer market, where emphasis on cost-effectiveness and quality prevails. Its international arm, TEMU, is rapidly outpacing traditional brick-and-mortar discounters like dollar stores and other online competitors, solidifying PDD's ascent in the global e-commerce arena with its strategic expansion.

TSMC registered a 37.1% total return in 2023. The company's performance was underpinned by its strategic capacity expansion, enhanced production yields, and heightened demand for high-performance chips, primarily driven by AI and data centers. Capitalizing on the key growth drivers, TSMC is well-positioned to maintain its robust position in the semiconductor industry.

Midea recorded a 5.1% total return in 2023. The company's performance was bolstered by the stabilization of the real estate industry and its ongoing profitability enhancements. With increased efforts to diversify away from the real estate sector, Midea is well-positioned to capitalize on broader market opportunities and sustain its growth trajectory in across consumer goods, commercial equipment, and industrial robots.

The fund performance was mainly dragged by companies including China Education Group, the education company investing in vocational training, LONGi Green Energy, a leading player in the solar industry, and Haitian Flavouring, the largest condiment manufacturer in China.

China Education Group recorded a -53.8% total return in 2023. Though operating in the vocational training but not the heavily regulated K12 industry, the company was derated heavily as investors feared regulatory expansion from the Ministry of Education and worried about its future pricing power, profitability, and acquisitive growth.

LONGi recorded a -45.6% total return in 2023. The aggressive capacity expansion of new entrants harmed the price of solar module and caused investor concerns over market oversupply.

Haitian Flavouring recorded a -42.3% total return in 2023. The company faced challenges as extended COVID lockdowns over the past three years significantly impacted the catering industry, particularly smaller establishments which form a substantial portion of Haitian's customer base. This situation hampered the company's progress towards normalization.

Outlook

Moving into 2024, we anticipate a gradual stabilization and resurgence of China's economy. Following a period of sluggish growth, the government is likely to introduce broader stimulus measures, aimed at revitalizing consumer confidence and stabilizing the market.

AI is poised to be a key growth driver for the next decade. In March, the release of Baidu's large language model (LLM) Wenxin Yiyan marked the beginning of a major competition among domestic players. Soon after, major tech companies such as Alibaba, Huawei, Tencent, iFlytek, and ByteDance all introduced their own LLMs and stepped up their investments in AI. We are confident that AI-enabled software and robotics will spearhead innovation and enhance social productivity in the years to come, heralding enormous investment opportunities.

Reflecting on three years of negative performance, Chinese equities currently stand at historically low valuations compared to other emerging markets, Japan, and the US. Persistent inflation has pushed back expectations of interest rate cuts by the Federal Reserve, casting a shadow over global market performance. The impending US presidential election could introduce further volatility to the US market. Although China's path to recovery appears uneven, we believe that the commencement of economic and valuation recovery is on the horizon, bolstered by the country's enduring economic vitality. We take a cautious yet constructive perspective position, considering the potential impacts of continued inflation, regulatory shifts, and the evolving Sino-US relationship.

HSZ China Fund is strategically aligned to leverage China's stabilization, recovery, and enduring success. Despite uncertainties in China's demand, our overseas-driven investments are well-placed. Our positions in the food & beverage and cosmetics sectors are capitalizing on the current market challenges, aggressively capturing market share from both domestic and international competitors. Additionally, the promising prospects in AI and robotics are poised to drive superior performance in the technology and industrial sectors. The fund's PE is at a historical low, yet our portfolio companies continue to exhibit comparable, if not superior, quality relative to their historical standards.

In the current challenging environment, our investment approach, which focuses on selecting long-term winners with a franchise, growing inner strength and attractive valuations, is the key to identifying companies that can achieve above-average results in the long term, even in a difficult market.

NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Net asset value ("NAV") calculation

The NAV of each subfund and the share of the different classes therein are calculated at market value at the end of the financial year and on each day that units are issued or redeemed, in the currency unit (CU) of the corresponding subfund (USD). The NAV is not calculated on days when stock exchanges or markets in the countries where the subfund is most active are closed, such as on bank holidays and public holidays.

Investments traded on a stock exchange or on a regulated market open to the public must be valued at their price on the principal market on which they are traded. Other investments or those for which no price is available for a given day must be valued at the best price which could be obtained if they were sold at the time of valuation. In such a case, the fund managers use suitable, commonly accepted valuation models and principles to determine market value.

The value of money market instruments not traded on a stock exchange or a regulated market open to the public is calculated as follows: the valuation price of such investments is successively adapted to the redemption price on the basis of the net acquisition price, while maintaining a constant calculated investment return. In the event of a marked change in market conditions, the basis on which the various investments are valued is adapted to reflect new market yields. If no current market price is available, the valuation is usually based on the valuation of money market instruments with identical characteristics (quality and location of the issuer, issue currency,

Cash at banks is valued at the total amount plus accrued interest. In the event of a marked change in market conditions or the institution's solvency, the basis on which term deposits are valued is adapted to reflect the new conditions.

The NAV per unit of a subfund is equal to the share, at market value, of the assets of the subfund, less any commitments of the subfund, divided by the number of outstanding units. It is rounded to the nearest 0.01 in the currency unit of the subfund in question.

Subscription/redemption The issue and redemption price of units is based on the net asset value per unit on the valuation day calculated on the basis of the closing prices pursuant to § 16. In the case of unit issues, an issuing commission may be added to the net asset value pursuant to § 18 and, in the case of unit redemptions, a redemption commission may be deducted from the net asset value pursuant to ξ 18.
